

Road To Redemption

June 20, 2015 - Ciudad Juarez, Chihuahua MX - Control Freak Studio has announced its next game "Road to Redemption" for mobile devices, iOS and Android.

You will dive into endless battles with swords and shields in where your best ally will be your reflexes, it is not just slashing you will really need to pay attention to your opponent to determine the position where you need to throw your next blow with not having their shield tackling your weapon. But careful, don't get too confident, your opponent will not stand still just waiting for your attack. He will be also attacking you, this are fights 'til death not a child's play. While you're looking for a glimpse of a bare point where to hit, you will have to be very aware of where he is going to attacks to use your shield.

You will enter in the life of a humble villager whose family, wife and son, are killed before him. You will try to save them, to do something for them but you will then realize that you are nothing compared to them. There were those times where small towns and villages were often razed in search of slaves who were seen fit for combat in the arenas, one of the most popular attractions of that time.

As you are getting more and more experience, you will get better skills, better weapons of both offensive and defensive, but that feeling does not cease, you bring with you day by day the memory of that day... that day when you were not able to protect or even defend your family!. As it grows and grows your guilt, what you want now is not revenge ... But your redemption.

Availability and Requirements: Road to Redemption is scheduled to launch in the middle of July of this year and will require Gingerbread version 2.3.1 or higher for Android Mobile Devices and at least 6.0 para iOS Mobile Devices.

Control Freak Studio is an independent team of game developers and interactive experiences. Since our creation in 2012 to date, we have published about 3 games in Google Play with positive scores both on the web and in the press and some events giving interactive experiences. Visit us online at the following address: <https://www.facebook.com/ControlFreakStudio>.

Note: You can find gameplay screenshots and video in the following URL:
<http://road2redemption.weebly.com>.